Question 1: In the disk provided, there is a folder for U30011097. That part number is not on the list provided on SOW, is a quote required for that?

Answer 1: No.

Question 2: Is it OK to back up more complex devices with Opens Express to get additional coverage. Attaining 99% is achievable with OX but if not able to use, it's achievable but much more expensive.

Answer 2: No, in our repair environment, we do not get consistent test results and sufficient fault coverage using Opens Express.

Question 3: The SOW requires a magnetic media copy of the documentation is required. Will a CD be acceptable?

Answer 3: Yes

Question 4: What is the shape the current fixtures are in?

Answer 4: The fixtures are in new condition.

Will they need any other rework/refurbishment other than any modifications that may be required by qualifying the test program to be in compliance?

Answer 4: No, The only modifications that may be required are wire changes in order to prevent multiplexer errors when adding or modifying tests and or models.

Question 5: If so, would that be something that needs to be included in this quote?

Answer 5: Yes, The contractor should include costs that will be required to add or modify fixture wiring in order to test all components.

Question 6: Do the fixtures being supplied comply with requirements of your RFQ (thus eliminating rework)

Answer 6: Yes, the fixtures supplied meet the requirements of the RFQ. The only modifications that may be required are wire changes in order to prevent multiplexer errors when adding or modifying tests and or models.

Question 7: Does anyone know what level of compliance the programs being supplied meet? (thus less reprogramming to meet your required level of coverage?

Answer 7: The contractor should assume no compliance for the test programs provided. The files provided in the data CD should only be used as reference for fixture wiring. The test program files supplied have not been debugged or modified. The contractor should regenerate the Test Programs using the GENRAD and Contractor models and libraries.
